UNIQUE PAPER WEIGHT.

Made by a Maysville Machinist—Presented to Judge Wadsworth.

James A. Frost, Machinist at the Maysville Cotton Mills, has made and presented Judge A. A. Wadsworth a unique paper weight. It is a cupola containing a bell, the whole mounted on a base made of metal taken from the bell that was ruined in the burning of Washington Opera-house January 30, 1898. The cupola is covered with a roof made of pieces of copper taken from C. and O. engine No. 79, which blew up near the Roundhouse May 20, 1899, while the miniature bell inside is a piece of the old Opera-house bell. The front of the base is ornamented with a piece of suspender buckle worn by Dick Coleman, who was burned in this city December 6, 1899, while the top of the base contains a piece of steel taken from the wreck of the steamer Boston No. 3, which burned opposite this city August 8, 1900. Mr. Frost has been about four weeks in completing the weight, and it is a sure-enough curiosity.

ANOTHER KILLING.

Officer J. Phister Wallace Shot Alex. Boyd Early Last Evening.

Alex. Boyd, colored, has been for some time employed about the saloons on Market street.

Last night he appeared to be, according to Officer Wallace's statement, in an unusually "convivial" condition, both internally and externally.

About 8 o'clock he was passing the Courthouse when he espied the officer whom he engaged in conversation.

Mr. Wallace says he discovered that Boyd was drunk and advised him to go on his way, else he would arrest him.

Boyd replied that he could not arrest him and began to make several prize-ring demonstrations, he having recently had a "bout" with another colored man, in which he worsted his opponent.

Thereupon Wallace put him under arrest and started toward the Jail.

When just between Coughlin's Stable and Thomas's Warehouse Boyd showed fight and the officer struck him across the shin with his cane.

Then the struggle commenced, when Boyd pulled a bottle of whisky from his pocket and hit the officer in the side, breaking the bottle and spilling the contents over him.

A second bottle was thrown and hit Wallace on the leg.

Then, Mr. Wallace says, he began shooting, firing three shots wide of the mark, when Boyd produced a third bottle and was raising it as if to strike Wallace, but the latter fired a fourth shot with intent to hit, which struck Boyd in the breast, proving fatal in about five minutes.

Immediately after the shooting Wallace surrendered himself, and Boyd's remains were taken to Q. A. Means & Son's undertaking establishment, where Coroner Wood held an inquest at 9 o'clock this morning.

An examination of Boyd's body showed that three of the officer's bullets had taken effect—one in the left side on a line with his waistbelt, one to the right of the right nipple, and one just to the right of the heart.

[The Coroner's investigation had not concluded when THE LEDGER went to press at 10 o'clock.—Ed.]

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Smith has been blessed with a daughter, born yesterday morning.
